Camp Story

Missionary Spotlight

One Hope Canada

Last summer at the first day camp we put on we ended up having only a few boys as campers. This gave us the opportunity to modify our schedule and activities to really engage the kids.

Our volunteers came up with the idea to stage a kidnapping one day and leave behind a series of clues and riddles for the kids to follow in order to stage a rescue! It ended up taking us a few hours to track down the villains and save the other volunteer, and even then the campers were hoping it might happen again!

One Hope Canada is the umbrella organization for summer camps across the nation as well as supporting churches and missionaries. This summer using their recently developed “MyCamp” app they will be hosting online camp weeks for July!

The camps will be one week long and involve a livestream every day followed by discussion with cabin leaders. Campers will be in groups of 10-20 and be able to chat with each other and the cabin leaders in a secure and moderated room within the app.

This will provide an opportunity for kids to still get a taste of the camp atmosphere this summer without having to leave the safety of home.

Board Developments

During the last month, we have looked into alternatives for camp programming this summer and gone through a number of ideas. However, the amount of effort logistically and financially to make most of these a reality is beyond what could be supported with the current interest level. Because of that, we are going to support the Camp Canada program being run by One Hope Canada.

Camp Canada will run during July and, depending on the number of registrations and where the campers sign up from, we may have a few of our volunteer team work with the online camps. There are a number of camps from across Canada that have decided to help out, so there is a good chance that the volunteer requirements will be met without our direct involvement.

Knowing that the summer will be a quiet one, we plan to further prepare for the mobile day camp model and how it will roll out in 2021. In addition, we are looking into having an event happen to bring our volunteer team together for training and fellowship. Ideally this will coincide with a fundraising event and possibly a community event where we can serve people outside of our organization.
